Even Victories Require Constant Vigilance!

We won our lawsuit against the Flathead Forest Plan in June, with U.S. District Judge Donald Molloy writing that abandoning the prior Plan’s Amendment 19 road closure and reclamation program was “like throwing away your umbrella in a rainstorm because you are not getting wet.” But the government would like to just paper the problem over, rather than reinstate true protections for grizzly bear and bull trout. See page 2 for details!

On page 3 we provide updates about Krause Basin and our volunteer work maintaining authorized trails and reclaiming unauthorized trails.

On page 4 we issue an alert about air tours over Glacier National Park and ask you to send in a quick comment to finally put an end to them. Don’t be misled by the news headlines that Glacier is eliminating the overflights when it is in fact proposing a phase-out period with no end date!

On page 5 we share some unsolicited praise for our weekly Swan Ranger Reports and send out a big thank you to the many Rangers that make those reports possible by sharing their outing photos with us!

On page 6 we announce our October 10 general membership meeting. We’ve again moved it forward a month so we can hold it outdoors during this time of COVID resurgence and social distancing.

On page 6 we also share some unsolicited praise for our work and on page 7 we remind you that Cinnabar Foundation has again said it will match the first $4,000 of your donations to support our work! So act quickly to double your donation!

We hope you and yours are well and healthy, in spite of the setbacks in recovery from COVID. We are glad to be able continuing our work and very thankful for your continuing support of it!

We are also continually grateful for your emails and letters to officials that help us make the progress we do and to hold off the worst of what is proposed. Fish and wildlife can’t speak for themselves in our political system, so it is up to all of us to speak for their protection!

Judge Rules in Favor of Grizzly Bears and Bull Trout!

A federal judge has ruled in favor of grizzly bears and bull trout in our lawsuit against the 2018 revised Flathead Forest Plan! U.S. District Judge Donald Molloy cited Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg in ruling that federal agencies were negligent in abandoning the prior Plan’s road management protections for grizzly bear and bull trout, saying it is “like throwing away your umbrella in a rainstorm because you are not getting wet.”

Amendment 19’s road closure and removal requirements are credited with putting threatened grizzly bears on a path toward recovery. Its requirement that culverts be removed from permanently closed roads is credited with helping protect threatened bull trout from the sediment released by inevitable culvert washouts.

The revised Flathead Forest Plan abandoned these requirements, so Swan View Coalition and Friends of the Wild Swan filed a lawsuit in 2019. Judge Molloy’s 6/24/21 Order requires the Forest Service and Fish and Wildlife Service to reconsider its abandonment of Amendment 19 and to conduct new Endangered Species Act reviews of any new road-building projects.

Our victory should slow down federal efforts to remove ESA protection from the Northern Continental Divide Ecosystem grizzly bear population, which is premised on the same abandonment of Amendment 19 road and motorized vehicle management. The agencies, however, are thus far showing they think they can just paper over the shortcomings of their Forest Plan and the Biological Opinion it relies upon.

Soon after the Court Order, the Forest Service attempted to move forward with new road building projects without consulting with Fish and Wildlife Service over a new Biological Opinion for the Plan - something it promised it would not do in oral arguments before Judge Molloy in May. Our attorneys asked Judge Molloy to amend his order to make it clear that the Forest Service must also rewrite those portions of the Forest Plan he found unlawful.

We finished that briefing in early September and, along the way, secured written promises from the Forest Service to Judge Molloy that it would not proceed with most of its pending road building plans. Our attorneys have objected to the exceptions where the Forest Service wants to go ahead with road building based on an unlawful Biological Opinion and Plan and we await Judge Molloy’s ruling on the matter.

Meanwhile, the Forest Service continues to plan more roadbuilding, requiring the public to file its Objections to the massive Mid-Swan Project without having a lawful Forest Plan or Biological Opinion to compare it to! It is still full steam ahead with little regard for public input or law!
Volunteers Ready to Protect and Restore Krause Basin!

In May we asked our members to object to Flathead National Forest’s plans to issue a Special Use Permit for guided motorized bike and motorcycle tours in Krause Basin. Many of you emailed the Forest Service with your objections. Thank you!

We also had our attorney announce we would file a lawsuit if the Permit included Krause Basin, in part because Forest Service maps of trails where motorized use is allowed are in error and violate the 1988 Recreation Plan for the area. In other words, the FS would be permitting motorized commercial guiding on trails closed to motorized use.

While the FS issued a commercial Permit for other areas of the Flathead for 2021, it made clear the trails in Krause Basin were not included! It helped that FS wildlife biologists agreed with our contentions that the Krause Basin maps are flawed and that it would be inappropriate to issue a commercial permit just as the FS is initiating a new public planning process for Krause Basin.

In July we asked our members to sign up for the new “collaborative” planning process by August 15 and many of you did. Soon after, the FS announced it was “building a contact list of all interested parties” but has said nothing further. We have filed a Freedom of Information Act request to obtain the records by which we can fact-check the contact list.

Meanwhile, we renewed our annual Volunteer Agreement with the FS to help maintain trails on Swan Lake Ranger District. We also signed an agreement to help the District “naturalize” and decommission unauthorized trails in Krause Basin.

Four of our members got FS volunteer chainsaw certification this summer so we can use chainsaws to help maintain or decommission trails. Area forests are experiencing increased tree mortality and blowdown due to climate change, so we needed to expand our toolkit.

The photo comparison on this page shows a large grand fir removed from the Switchback Trail recently by our volunteers. They cleared another half-dozen blow-down trees and re-dug trail tread in several places where blown-over root wads left holes in the trail.

Our volunteers stand ready to help maintain authorized trails and to decommission unauthorized trails in Krause Basin and to maintain trails elsewhere on Swan Lake Ranger District. We await word from the FS on when Krause Basin planning will begin and will let you know what we find out.

If you find trails in need of clearing on SLRD, let us know via email to keith@swanview.org where the blow-down or trail damage is located. See also our Swan Rangers in Service web page!
Your Comments Needed to End Noisy Air Tours Over Glacier Park Now!

The photo on this page shows one doesn’t need a noisy helicopter ride to get nice views of Glacier National Park. And those that aren’t avid hikers can drive the breathtaking Going to the Sun Road for such views.

Recent news headlines suggest that Glacier is finally phasing out commercial air tours, but don’t be fooled. Glacier is only proposing to phase out the air tours - without naming a date by which the phase-out would be complete.

Glacier announced its desire to “prohibit commercial sightseeing tours over Glacier National Park” in its 1999 General Management Plan, concluding “these air tours do not meet the affirmative responsibilities to preserve park resources or park values ‘in a state of nature’ or to care for them properly.”

The National Parks Air Tour Management Act of 2000 then gave Glacier and other National Parks the authority to phase out air tours. Now, more than 20 years later, Glacier is proposing to start another indefinite phase-out period rather than simply put an end to the air tours now.

Noisy air tours have long been a hot-button issue for National Parks, where a few privileged passengers ruin the peaceful and quiet enjoyment of the Parks by the hundreds trying to experience the Park firsthand from the ground. It is not only Park visits by people that are spoiled by noisy air tours, think about the wildlife that have no choice but to call them home!

Please take a few moments to send a simple message to Glacier Park and the Federal Aviation Administration. We suggest something along these lines:

“You’ve had over 20 years to phase out overflights. This is the time to be done with them, not start a whole new phase-out process. Current generations of Americans deserve quiet in their National Parks, not just a promise that future generations will enjoy quiet after a phase-out of undetermined length.”

And the Folks that Make them Possible!

Our weekly Swan Ranger reports remain very popular, even though they no longer document a single Swan Ranger group outing in words and photos. Instead, they are a collection of words and photos contributed by numerous Swan Rangers with the common theme of paying attention to what is along the trail, beside the road and outside our window. We want to thank our informal network of contributors and can think of no better way to do so than to share here what others say about them. We’ve also included a couple recent notes of appreciation for the old group outings because they too speak to the quality of the people involved then and now:

“We love it,” said K.K. “Please pass along to all of the talented outdoors photographers that these pictures are exquisite! Thank you so much to all for their contributions."
